BATTALION ACTIVITIES

9. 1st Battalion

With leave a distant memory, Op Herrick 16 preparation courses took centre stage and soldiers of all ranks dispersed to the far corners of the Army to conduct driver and commander cadres, specialist weapon training and foreign language aptitude tests. For those not involved in such exciting activities, MATTs needed to be done, weapon handling tests on the Heavy Machine Gun (HMG) and Grenade Machine Gun (GMG) completed and ranges fired. The battle winning and lifesaving equipment that have such proven records in theatre, such as MASTIFF, RIDGEBACK and JACKAL vehicles and the HMG and GMG, all require a significant amount of training and starting this early will be key to the Battalion's success.

Away from training, the Officers' Mess hosted some RMA Sandhurst Potential Officers (POs) showing them what a great place the Vikings is to be. The POs had a chance to speak to the soldiers and see what the Battalion has to offer. Being an unbiased D Company Platoon Commander, it is without doubt the support weapons that provided the most excitement during the visit, closely followed by the delights of a night out in either Guildford or Camberley.

Work aside, the main social event of May was the Battalion's sports tour to Cyprus. We faced the Poachers, the Steelbacks and the 2 military garrisons at Episkopi and Dhekelia at Football, Rugby, Cricket and Golf. The tour offered a rare chance for soldiers to travel abroad to play sport and gave all three Battalions of The Regiment a chance spend a decent amount of time getting to know each other - from Commanding Officer to Private soldier. On the sports field competition was fierce with games against local sides before the show events of Poacher v Viking teams. In the end a great tour was evenly balanced with the Poachers taking the spoils in Rugby and Football and the Vikings taking the honours in both Cricket and Golf.

Off the sports field, friendly competition was no less fierce. The Warrant Officers' and Sgts' Mess victory against the mixed Officers' Mess in the Tug of War at the Poachers' beach bar was one of the highlights. The distinct weight advantages the WOs and Sgts had only narrowly overcoming a spirited effort by the combined officers. At the Officers' Mess party there was a valiant, but ultimately unsuccessful, attempt by Lt George Waterfield to demolish the Poachers' Officers' Mess with his head. There was also a stand out victory for the Viking Battalion 2IC, Maj Ollie Brown. At 6ft 7 inches tall he successfully leapt from a table and was able to draw a pen mark on the corridor ceiling further away from the launch point than anyone else. Lt Col Mick Aston had made it clear with such an advantage anything but victory was not an option. Maj Brown was typically humble, demanding celebratory high fives of practically the entire collection of Poacher officers.

The tour was a rare and greatly appreciated opportunity for the soldiers to get away and do battle on the sports field. It also offered the first opportunity for many members of all three Battalions to get together and meet. The Vikings would like to thank all involved in hosting us so well, in particular The Poachers, whose hospitality was excellent. Bring on the rematch!

10. 2nd Battalion

As the temperature began to rise in Cyprus, May saw the Poachers once again jet off to even sunnier climes in Camp Bastion on RSOI and a Company deployment to Jordan. Along with an eventful social calendar, May turned out to be one of the busiest months for the Battalion on island so far.

The beginning of the month saw HQ, A and C Coy returning to Afghanistan to complete a RSOI training package in Camp Bastion, in order to refresh skills and learn the latest techniques from theatre. An excellent training package saw all companies training hard in temperatures of up to forty degrees. Fortunately for Afghanistan, but unfortunately for a Poacher deployment, the current progress being made in Helmand meant that everyone flew home after making full use of the opportunities in theatre.

Whilst the rest of the Battalion was away, B (Leicestershire) Coy deployed to Jordan on a Counter IED exercise. The two week exercise is a recurring commitment every few months and gives the soldiers an ideal opportunity to get away from Cyprus and take full advantage of the Jordanian training facilities and the chance to work with the Jordanian armed forces.

On the sporting front, May saw the Viking sports tour arrive in Dhekelia. With the Steelbacks based in Nicosia, it was a unique occasion for all three Royal Anglian battalions to come together and compete in rugby, football, cricket and golf. Some excellent matches eventually saw the honours evenly spread between the Poachers and Vikings, with the Poachers beating the Vikings 27- 0 in the rugby and 2-0 in the football. The Vikings responded by winning the cricket and golf. In addition to the sports matches, the Poachers extended their hospitality to the Vikings and Steelbacks by providing water sports and a trip to watch the Akrotiri 10s Army Rugby competition. The tour concluded with a large BBQ for all three battalions at the Poacher's Beach Bar on the beach at Dhekelia.

11. 3rd Battalion

This month has seen the Battalion engaged in some challenging routine training, preparation for OP HERRICK 16 and, in Cyprus, a series of operations designed to move the mission forward in a number of discrete areas, coupled with a combined sports competition hosted by the Poachers.

Firstly, Battalion training in the UK. Encouragingly, attendance remains high with healthy numbers of soldiers at all events and a good number of recruits in currently training. With the balance of the Battalion deployed, this is particularly important and we are constantly on the lookout for new soldiers and ex-Regulars so please get the word out. Aside from routine weekly training, this month has seen three Recruit Training weekends, Company Level training, Ex WESTERN APPROACHES (LAD Concentration) along with HERRICK 16 preparation; and we also bolstered the wider Defence Outreach programme by deploying a small training team, under Capt Jon Pickering, to Kazakhstan to support their Rapid Reaction Bde training.

On operations in Cyprus the Battalion has gone from strength to strength. Having settled in and made our mark very quickly, we have conducted a number of discrete operations designed to influence local community behaviour, bolster UN credibility and establish ground truth in a number of previously 'grey' areas, as a pre-cursor to taking affirmative action. Notwithstanding a busy patrols and support schedule, we have grasped the opportunity to explore the island, conduct adventure training in Dhekelia and Troodos and a good number of soldiers have used the on-island Army Education facilities to get qualified in a number of disciplines, ranging from basic IT skills through to full re-vamps of CVs, in preparation for returning to UK. Aside from all this, a team led by 2Lt Speechley tied first place with a group of Slovak Olympians (literally!) in the UNFICYP Military Skills competition and, rather frighteningly, we are already a 1/3 of the way through the tour and have just hosted the main recce of our successors, 23 Pioneer Regiment RLC.

The opportunity to play sport against the Poachers & Vikings was priceless, as was the combined dinner nights generously hosted by the Poachers' messes - no doubt there will be some photos in the next edition of Castle! With our UK focus very much on delivering Hybrid Foundation Training and preparing soldiers for Afghanistan, while in Cyprus operations continuing apace, that's all from the Steelbacks for this edition.
